Yes Chef! Phillip McMillan

Yes Chef is the highly amusing memoir of Phillip McMillan, who grew up eating the working class food of the sixties and seventies but survived and went on to become a sought-after chef. His story covers his progression from meatloaf to foie gras, white Anglo-Saxon society to multicultural Australia from Sunday school to Buddhism. Yes Chef traces the development of Melbourne's food evolution from the Swiss and German dominated cooking style in the 1980s through to the modern molecular degustation menu, fusion food and the current style which is heavily influenced by Asian flavours. It details Phillip's struggle to build a career in a non-family friendly industry while balancing the responsibilities of family life. It also reveals the many and varied rivalries, thefts, rumours and behind-the-scenes goings on of the restaurant industry, fascinating to anybody who enjoys food and wine, has ever watched 'MasterChef' or dreamed of running their own restaurant!
