Haruki is traveling to the vast plains of Hokkaido, Japan, on a lone bus about to enter a three-kilometer-long tunnel. He is grieving for the loss of his wife when the tunnel collapses and traps the bus inside. In the darkness that follows, he manages to fumble out of the bus with the only other survivor, an astute and gentle woman who reminds him of his late wife. Without any light to guide them and with only each other to depend on, they try to escape the stifling darkness and along the way find themselves confronted by their pasts and given their last chance at intimacy, and ultimately, absolution.

A realist story that plays with surreal elements, the tale poses a simple question: what is the meaning of hope?

This Kindle Single is part of Day One Fiction, a new short-story series by today's best new voices in fiction. Day One stories are sometimes funny, sometimes heartbreaking, and always compelling and insightful.

Jasper Parsons:

As a pupil exactly feel bored to help reading. If their teacher inquired them to go to the library or even make summary for some reserve, they are complained. Just very little students that has reading's soul or real their passion. They just do what the professor want, like asked to go to the library. They go to presently there but nothing reading significantly. Any students feel that reading through is not important, boring in addition to can't see colorful photos on there. Yeah, it is for being complicated. Book is very important for you. As we know that on this period, many ways to get whatever we would like. Likewise word says, many ways to reach Chinese's country.
